Go to Mass on Sunday and on Christmas

Some have asked whether a Sunday evening Mass on Christmas Eve would fulfill both the obligation for a Sunday Mass and the obligation for a Christmas Day Mass. Catholics should attend two Masses to fulfill their Sunday and Christmas Mass obligations.

MIKKIE'S CORNER - Health & Nutrition

Tips to survive Christmas, Dr. Seuss style!

1. Don't debate the plate, trick the brain into thinking it's great! Fill a smaller plate, the brain won't know the difference and your stomach won't pass it's circumference
2. Choose your food wisely, a small portion of this and more of that, a bit of fat and a tad of that; will let you enjoy all there is by choosing to do this: Less potatoes, more veggies, half a bun, a fist full of turkey white and dark, a splat of cranberry, and a tip of gravy
3. When it comes to desserts, we want to eat all, but know it will hurt, with our stomachs bloated and waistline exploded. To enjoy every piece and to be sufficed, try this little bit of advice; half or a quarter is always more fun as each one can be tasted and not overdone.
4. To avoid acting dumb by drinking too much rum or whatever the drink, be sure to have a buffer, 1 cup of water per drink (in-between).
5. Don't forget to exercise your body, not only your jaw, as when you keep moving the appetite will fall. Less cravings of food, no bloating or aching, a surge of good energy to keep you going.
6. Remember the reason for the season, Christmas is about worship and grace, family and friends at your place. The food and drink are there to have, but not to indulge and make your stomach bulge!

Hope you all have a Healthy, Happy Christmas and Happy New Year - Mikkie (PS my son Dryden wanted it noted he helped me on the rhyming of the words)

Mikkie Nettles, CHN/PT (Certified Holistic Nutritionist/Personal Trainer)
